Charles Galbraith is a lawyer for Kilpatrick Townsend specializing in litigation and Native American Affairs. He previously served as White House associate director of intergovernmental affairs and public engagement and a deputy associate counsel for presidential personnel during the Obama administration. Outside of the office, Galbraith stays active in Native American causes, including as a trustee of the Institute of American Indian Art in New Mexico and a board member of Nike N7, footwear designed specifically for the Native-American community that helps raise money for Native youth sports programs.

Age: 37

Birthplace: Phoenix

Current neighborhood: Logan Circle

Alma mater: University of Chicago

If I could be drafted by any team, I'd pick:
Arizona Diamondbacks

My best career "homerun": Helping to elect President Barack Obama

My worst career "strikeout": Failing to help elect Hillary Clinton

My walk-up music: Guns N' Roses' "Welcome to the Jungle" or Young MC's "Bust a Move"

If I could interview any athlete, I'd ask:
Muhammad Ali. "Will you please come back and run for president?"

Favorite game day snack: King-sized Snickers bar

One thing most people don't know about me:
I only went to law school because I wasn't good enough to make a living playing baseball.
