

Business Transactions

Minding The Details

Mergers, acquisitions, dispositions, and spinoffs include executive and equity compensation issues, as well as general compensation and benefit issues that can have far reaching implications in the areas of tax, accounting, securities, and ERISA. Our team works in tandem with corporate attorneys handling the overall transaction that, given the multinational nature of our clients, can present a variety of issues related to U.S. and international benefits and compensation.

Reach

Specialized Experience

Our practice encompasses global benefits and compensation issues in multibillion-dollar spinoffs by publicly traded companies, meeting tax and other regulatory challenges associated with the division of plans related to pensions, 401(k) funds, deferred compensation, and health and welfare. We also provide counsel on the complexities in transactions associated with sellers' employee stock ownership plans (ESOPs), and in appropriate cases, represent executive teams within a company.

Approach

Transactional Support

For many clients, our counsel extends beyond a single transaction — where we evaluate a particular deal and also advise about its potential long-term impact — to provide ongoing benefits and compensation advice. Because our team has been active in benefits and claims disputes, we bring particular insight into the sensitive human resources issues a transaction may present.
