Jordan Solomon, President and CEO, EcoStrat, Inc. will lead the panel discussion along with John Plaza, President and CEO, SkyNRG Americas, Inc., Mark Riedy, Partner, Kilpatrick Townsend and Stockton LLP, and Chris Tindal, Assistant Director and Business Team Lead, Commercial Aviation Alternative Fuels Initiative (CAAFI). The panel will discuss how EcoStrat's rating system for biomass supply risk will promote biorenewable projects.

Ecostrat is currently driving the new BDO Zone Program to unlock new sources of capital for biogas, biochemical, biofuel and biomaterial plants by using the Biomass Supply Chain Risk (BSCR) Standards and Ratings to certify Opportunity Zones that have the best potential for bio-based economic development. The BDO Zone Initiative is an economic development tool that attracts new markets that utilize woody biomass.
